
Primoris Services Corporation Announces Chief Financial Officer Planned Transition

Oct 05, 2018

DALLAS, Oct. 05, 2018 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Primoris Services Corporation (NASDAQ Global Select: PRIM) (“Primoris” or “Company”) today announced the planned retirement of its Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, Peter J. Moerbeek, after ten years of service to Primoris. Mr. Moerbeek will resign as a director on November 2, 2018, he will step down as Chief Financial Officer after the filing of the Company’s third quarter Form 10-Q and earnings call; and he will be entering into a 12-month consulting agreement.

The Company also announced that its Board of Directors promoted Ken Dodgen, Corporate Controller, from Senior Vice President to Executive Vice President, and he will become the Company’s Chief Financial Officer following the third quarter earnings call.

As part of the transition, Travis Stricker was promoted from Vice President, Finance to Senior Vice President, Finance and has also been appointed Chief Accounting Officer.

Primoris’ President and Chief Executive Officer David King stated, “Pete Moerbeek’s tenure as our Chief Financial Officer saw Primoris grow from a newly formed public, little known, regional E&C company to become one of the largest, national E&Cs with a reputation for best-in-class execution across multiple end markets. His dedication and determination inspired everyone who worked with him, and his leadership contributed to Primoris’ success. It has been both a professional and personal pleasure to work with Pete. We thank Pete for his service and best wishes during his well-earned retirement.”

Mr. King continued, “Ken Dodgen, Travis Stricker and Pete have worked together for more than a year, and I expect a smooth transition. Ken is an established leader with over ten years’ prior experience as a chief financial officer. He has a deep understanding of our operations and the end markets in which we operate. Travis also adds a wealth of industry experience. I look forward to working closely with Ken and Travis and am confident in their ability to pick up the reins and help guide Primoris in our continued growth.”

ABOUT KEN DODGEN
